MyWestSac.com: more to the story

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

There seems to be more to the story of why "MyWestSac.com" is offline.

The website, which allows users to chat about politics, neighborhood issues and other topics, "went dark" a couple of weeks ago. Its host, real estate agent Jeanette Ali (whose advertisement was featured on the site) told the News-Ledger last week that the site was down "due to maintenance."

Maybe. But just before the site went offline, a whistleblower in West Sacramento found out through an Internet database that "MyWestSac.com" was being hosted on the computers of San Joaquin Delta College – unbeknownst to the college.

"We received a public records request for, basically, how the decision was made to host that (website) here," said Greg Greenwood, the college's public information officer. "We simply didn't know it was being hosted here. When we found out about it, we killed it. It was quite a surprise to us."

Greenwood acknowledged that an employee was involved in the illicit use of the college's computers. He declined to say whether that person still works at Delta College, but promised "it won't happen again."

Delta College is a public junior college in a district that serves the greater Stockton area.

Jeanette Ali's husband, Sonny Ali, has been an employee at the college, working with its computer networks. He is listed as the "webmaster" for at least a couple other groups and businesses around West Sacramento.

The News-Ledger called Jeanette Ali to ask about MyWestSac.com's use of Delta College's computers. She declined to talk about that.

"MyWestSac is going back online," Ali did say. "You should print that."

The News-Ledger tried to reach her husband, Sonny Ali, through an email address at another website. He didn't respond by press time. Jeanette Ali declined to provide a telephone number where her husband could be reached.

16-year old held after 3 stabbed

A 16-year old West Sacramento girl has been arrested for stabbing a group of people who were fighting at a Todhunter Avenue apartment complex Sunday night. The incident happened at about 9:39 p.m., said Sergeant Mark Tingley of the West Sacramento Police Department.

"A group of three or four gals went over to confront two juvenile gals over a prior fight," said Tingley. "During the melee of this fight, one of the girls not involved in the fight at first began stabbing into them."

A 17-year old girl was stabbed in the arm, a 21-year old woman was cut behind the ear and a 23-year old woman was stabbed in the back. Those injured are believed to have been treated and released from the hospital, said Tingley.

Two knives were found afterwards.

"There was a paring knife and a regular-size butcher knife, like from a kitchen set," he said.

Running for school board

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

TERESA BLACKMER

Teresa Blackmer will finish up a 34-year career with the Washington Unified School District on Monday, November 3. On Tuesday, November 4, she hopes to be elected to help run the place.

"We could make some positive changes," she told the News-Ledger. "We could make sure our test scores go even higher."

Blackmer is a north-area resident, active in running local football, soccer and baseball leagues. She has lived in the city nearly all of her 57 years.

"I graduated from (the former) Washington High School in 1970," she said. "I got married as soon as I got out of high school. I had my first son, and went to work at the school district in 1973. I was an instructional aide and bilingual assistant."

She now has her husband and two sons, and her grandchildren include a youngster now at Bryte Elementary. She's been active in the district's union of "classified" employees – school staff other than teachers. On your ballot, you'll see her self-described as a "retired educator." She has been a "campus supervisor" at River City High School "for a good 15 years."

"I am an educator," she said. "We come in contact with children with a variety of problems and a variety of situations. We take them under our wings and refer them to the appropriate person. I've come in really close contact with a lot of kids in this community, as well as with the students."

Blackmer is a past president of her union, and has helped negotiate some of the staff's labor deals with the school board. She'd like to change the board's style a bit.

"There's a division on the board," said Blackmer. "They don't always work well together. This is for the kids – our children are the future, period."

Who does she support among her fellow candidates for two open spots on the board next month?

"I support (incumbent) Dave Westin," she said. "I think he's doing a good job."

Blackmer was also asked her feelings about Superintendent Steve Lawrence and his administration.

"I think there needs to be more communication from them," she said. "They should put more information in the newspapers – maybe do a quarterly newsletter and put it in the newspapers. Send it home with the children as well. You'll get more people to see what's going on. And there just has to be more accountability across the board."

The district's employees are pretty good, she thinks.

"If you take them as a whole, they're doing a good job with what they're given," said

Convicted of stealing from elder

An Elk Grove man was convicted Monday of stealing over $13,000 from his elderly Clarksburg landlord several years ago.

The office of Yolo County District Attorney Jeff Reisig said Richard Isaac Esquivel, 58, took the money between October, 2004, and March, 2005, when he rented a room from the 71-year old Clarksburg man. Esquivel not only failed to pay his rent or shared expenses for several months, but the victim also learned Esquivel had been taking her bank card to ATMs for cash withdrawals, and that he had used her card for online purchases including movies, flowers, cigars and presents.

In December alone, Esquivel charged over $8,000 to her account, said Reisig.

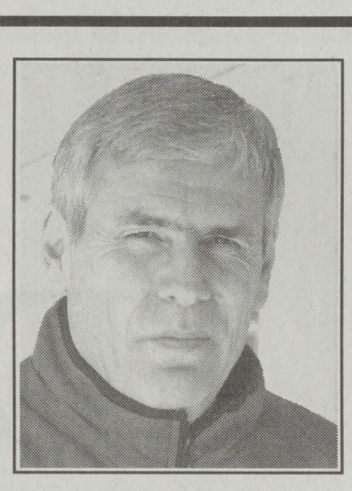
The victim and her family members eventually contacted authorities. Under the direction of a law enforcement officer, she confronted Esquivel – and captured his admissions during a recorded conversation.

Esquivel has been convicted of two felonies: theft from an elder, and fraudulent use of a credit card.

He'll be sentenced on Nov. 21, for up to four years in state prison.

So, who won the Palin/Biden debate?

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

If you're like me, you've been asked by countless family members and friends for your take on last Thursday night's political debate at Washington University in St. Louis between vice presidential candidates Sarah Palin and Joe Biden. My first response is, "What debate?" The last I looked, a real debate is a point and counter-point exchange of ideas that allows for probing follow-up questions which give true insights into what the debaters know and don't know, and that of course didn't happen last Thursday night. Instead, Biden debated McCain, who wasn't there, and Palin debated no one. In fact, Palin announced early on in the evening that "I may not answer the questions that either the moderator or you want to hear, but I'm going to talk straight to the American people." Well, that's fine, but it has nothing to do with debating the very serious issues currently facing our nation. And it seems to me that Biden wasn't much better at getting off his stump speech talking points than Palin, so when asked who won the debate, I guess it's fair to say it was pretty much a tie, taking into account of course that no actual debating took place. There was a clear loser, however – all those Americans who had actually tuned in hoping to hear a genuine, in-depth debate about our country's problems and future.

Vice presidential debates in the past have hardly been watched, and for good reason, because it's the top of the ticket that is truly important in presidential elections. But Americans have always loved a good train wreck – especially if it is going to be televised – and I think that had something to do with the incredible number of people who apparently clicked on their TV sets last Thursday night. First, there were all those who wanted to see if Biden would make a faux pas or two, as he's prone to do, and there was also the question of would he be appropriately gracious or inappropriately condescending to his female political foe. But I think even more Americans tuned in to see if Palin was indeed as "profoundly uninformed and verbally incoherent" as she often appeared to be in the Katie Couric interview which millions of Americans had seen ad nauseam in the week leading up to the debate. So, not only did both candidates have to slay a couple of personal dragons and prove they could successfully run the country should the unthinkable ever happen, but Palin also had the added pressure of trying to pass what one commentator called a nationally televised IQ test.

There is much to like about Palin. You don't get elected to be the governor of a state unless you have a lot on the political ball. And in getting elected as governor of Alaska, she often had to take on her own political party, which has been known for decades as being one of the most corrupt political machines in the nation. She also has a wonderful sense of humor, which seems to be spontaneous and genuine, and who doesn't love all those folksy phrases of hers and the disarming way she can smile and blow kisses. I mean, she didn't win Miss Congeniality in the Miss Alaska contest for nothing. And I especially admire her decision to lovingly raise a child with Down Syndrome, which will no doubt greatly enrich her life and the lives of the rest of her family. But is she a plausible president of the United States should something ever happen to her 71 year old running mate? And it's that very important question which brings me back to last Thursday night's vice presidential debate-not.

It's one thing to be able to stick to well-scripted talking points and to wink and gosh-darn yourself through 90 minutes of political theater, but anyone wishing to play in the big leagues of presidential politics has to be willing (and eager) to do all the really tough stuff that McCain, Obama, and Biden have already done (and continue to do). Palin has to be willing to submit herself to press conferences and give-and-take interviews with the American press, which short of meaningful debates, is the only way the voters of this nation can truly make an informed decision on her candidacy. She also needs to go on highly regarded television news programs like Meet the Press and Face the Nation, which have informed American voters throughout the years, and if she and her handlers can't bring themselves to face such in-depth scrutiny, then Palin can't hope to be taken seriously on the presidential/vice presidential stage. Her strategy can't continue to rely on just being the vice maverick and a charming pit-bull hockey mom who speaks in nothing but sweeping generalities and sarcastic (with a smile) stump-speech clichés. That simply won't cut it this time around. The stakes are much too high.

Look what has happened to this country under a president who often wasn't as inquisitive, knowledgeable, forthcoming, and engaged as he needed to be. With all the deadly serious problems (both foreign and domestic) now facing this nation, our next batch of political leaders are going to have to have their act together and surround themselves with the very best and the very brightest. There is going to be little wiggle room for error.

So, doggone it, do I think Joe Biden would make a much better president of the United States than Sarah Palin if, God forbid, it ever comes to that? You betcha!

The Billy Goat curse was supposedly placed on the Cubs in 1945 when Billy Goat Tavern owner Billy Sianis was asked to leave a World Series game at Wrigley Field because his pet goat's odor was bothering other fans.

The City of Chicago is in mourning this week after the elimination of their beloved Cubs and White Sox. Both teams were sent home packing and muttering wait until next year after suffering double losses in the 2008 playoffs. The Cubs quest to win a World Series after a 100 year drought was crushed by the Dodgers, who swept the Cubbies in three games, while the other team the White Sox, lost to the new kids on the block the Tampa Bay Rays in four games.

The Cubs have now lost nine straight post season games and the Cubs fans are still in shock and continue to believe that the Cubs curse lives! The Dodgers broke a 20-year postseason spell of their own with a shocking sweep, while extending the playoff futility for the Chicago Cubs to over a century without a championship.

The Dodgers swept the best-of-five Division Series against the team with the top record in the National League and will face the Philadelphia Phillies in the NLCS best of seven series. This was the Dodgers' first postseason series triumph since 1988 when they beat Oakland to win the Fall Classic.

Are the Cubs really cursed? The Billy Goat curse was supposedly placed on the Cubs in 1945 when Billy Goat Tavern owner Billy Sianis was asked to leave a World Series game at Wrigley Field because his pet goat's odor was bothering other fans. He was outraged and placed a curse on the team saying there would never again be a World Series game played at Wrigley Field. His exact words: "Them Cubs, they aren't gonna win no more."

The curse is said to have reared its ugly head again on September 9th, 1969 when a black cat ran onto the field as the Cubs played a crucial series against the Mets at Shea Stadium With a late season lead of 9 1/2 game lead over the Mets, nothing looked like it could stop the Cubs from returning to the World Series. The record books show the Cubs choked and the Mets went on to win the World Series.

In 1984, the Cubs finished season with a 95-64 record, the Cubs were primed and ready to finally return to the World Series but in the playoffs against the Padres a ground ball was hit to first Baseman, Leon Durham and instead of making an easy second out and retaining a one run lead, the ball rolled between Durham's legs and the Padres scored on the error. Two batters later, the Padres would take the lead, which eventually led to a Padres win and Cubs playoff elimination.

Of course, everyone remembers Steve Bartman, who on October 14, 2003 during a playoff game against the Florida Marlins, the local 26-year old from the Northern suburbs of Chicago, became the latest "goat" when he attempted to catch a foul ball near the left field wall as Cubs left fielder, Moises Alou, attempted to catch the same ball. Whether it's the curse of the goat or the curse of the 2003 playoffs, Cubbie fans will have to "wait until next year".

Anyway, the Dodgers are on a roll and with the addition of ex-Red Sox Manny Ramirez's bat Los Angeles should take care of the Phillies in six games while in the AL the Red Sox will take the young Rays to the limit in their best of seven. It seems like destiny for Manny Ramirez to return to Fenway Park for a classic World Series date with his former team. Major League baseball would love it and the television ratings would be off the charts with a fall classic between the Dodgers and Red Sox!

NFL Week 6

The Raiders (1-3) had a better week than the 49ers because of their bye week but the Silver and Black should be at full strength this Sunday (10 a.m.) when they march into New Orleans with their new head coach Tom Cable. The Raiders enjoyed the week off to heal their walking wounded which included running backs Justin Vargas and Darren McFadden who had two weeks to rest his injured turf toe.

The 49ers (2-3), who lost to New England 30-21 last Sunday, couldn't move the ball against the Patriots who controlled the ball for nearly 40 minutes including a 36 minute period between the third and fourth quarter. Also, it didn't help that quarterback J.T. O'Sullivan tossed three interceptions and the offense only converted one of nine third down plays. Anyway, it was the same old Niners (+4 ½) who are in tough this Sunday when they host the Philadelphia Eagles (1 p.m. FOX).

The Clarksburg High School Class of 1948 held their 60th year reunion at the Wilson Vineyards last Thursday evening, October 2, 2008. The above pictured graduates represent 14 of the original group of 27. Seven members of the graduating class have passed away.

These were depression babies, born in 1929-1930. They lived through World War II, experienced the deportation of friends to camps in the early 1940's, and left high school just in time for the Korean Conflict in the early 1950s.

An evening in the patio, near the wine bar, was followed by an excellent catered dinner, providing the perfect setting for renewing the ties which brought us together.

You're invited to fire department's open house

The West Sacramento Fire Department proudly announces the purchase of a new 100-foot Pierce ladder truck. The $800,000 fire truck will help reach the new high rise builds that are appearing along the river front. CalSTRS, which is currently under construction of a new 16 story high rise, contributed $150.000 towards the purchase of the fire truck. The Fire Truck will be housed at station 45 and is staff daily with four fire personnel.

The West Sacramento Fire Department (WSFD) also would like to invite the public to an "open house" Saturday, Oct. 11, 10:00 a.m.-2:00 p.m. at Station 45, 2040 Lake Washington Blvd. Planned as a fun and informative day for the family, the open house will feature equipment and safety demonstrations, including proper use of child safety seats. Visitors can learn about fire prevention tips and the WSFD's "Safe Place" program. "Sparky the Dalmation" will join firefighters for photo opportunities with kids. Free Hot dogs and refreshments will be provided. Kid's actives include a jump house, slide, balloons, and coloring contest, face paint and fire prevention trailer.

Though there are five fire stations geographically located throughout the city, Fire Station 45 was selected to host the open house because of its size and central location.

The theme of Fire Prevention Week 2008 is: Prevent Home Fires!" Fire safety advocates will spread the word to their communities that, with a little extra caution, preventing the leading causes of home fires – cooking, heating, electrical and smoking- materials – is within their power. National Fire Prevention Week serves as a good reminder that smoke alarm batteries should be replaced at least once a year.

Scam

A suspect in a "money changing" scam in western Yolo County was tracked to West Sacramento on Sept. 9 and arrested.

The Yolo County Sheriff's Department reports that at about 6:30 p.m. that day, the suspect made a purchase at Cache Creek Mini-Mart in Brooks. He then scammed the cashier while receiving change, leaving with an extra $107. The cashier checked his cash drawer and called 911.

Within 45 minutes, a robbery was reported at La Plazita Restaurant in Madison, about 12 miles away. The restaurant was robbed by a suspect after the suspect tried a money exchange scam.

Deputies tracked suspect Kevin Gowens, a 45-year old resident of Missouri, to a West Sacramento motel. He was arrested for conspiracy to commit a crime, robbery and burglary.

Fellow citizens, why do you turn and scrape every stone to gather wealth and take so little care of your children to whom you must relinquish all?

sold.... a well earned vote.....a community vote for Oscar.

DANNY LUNA
West Sacramento resident

Theresa, Dave & Barry

With so few choices for the school board, I personally feel we need to add Teresa Blackmere to the board since she has been in the district for so long and she brings the knowledge of her time as an employee of the district to the table. The State's budget could have such a huge effect on our district's budget and the employees having the biggest impact of those decisions, I feel it would be good to have an employee's perspective. She's also along time community member whose given much of her time volunteering at various youth activities.

I also feel Dave Westin has done a good job in that he has asked the hard questions and voted with a conscience. While that makes him not always popular with the administration or some of the employees, I feel we need someone on the board that is willing to stand out instead of voting along with the majority to show "a united front", as that is not what they are elected to do. Had other board members voted "no" when Mr. Westin did over some of the big issues like the building of the new high school, we would already be in the building along with the Theatre this community voted for to begin with. Lastly, it is hard to place the third vote as I have had differences with Barry Kalar in the past. I do believe he has been more consciences of the issues than Mary Leland at times. At times I've questioned his priorities but he is in most part respectful and courteous to the public.

I urge you to do your homework before casting your vote but regardless of whether you agree with my opinions or not, please vote.

Aztec's Picks

The dog (8-12) picked two out of three NFL games but missed again with his college pick of the week when Alabama failed to cover the 16-points against Kentucky. This week his "College Lick of the Week" is Missouri (+13) at home against Oklahoma State. In the NFL the Chargers (+5) will shock New England at home while the Colts (+6) trample the Ravens in Indy and on Monday night the Brownies (+7 ½) at home after a bye week will cover against the undefeated Giants.

Kings Korner

The Kings opened up their training camp on September 30th as they begin to tighten up their young roster for their first exhibition game in Portland on October 7th. The Kings first preseason home game is on Friday, October 10th against the new NBA franchise, the Oklahoma City Thunder. The Thunder franchise moved from Seattle in June taking everything from the Sonics franchise except their name.

The Kings will travel to Las Vegas on October 12th to play the Lakers and then to Stockton on October 15th to host the Clippers. Sacramento will then take a short trip to Texas on Friday, October 15th to play Houston and then on to Dallas Saturday, October 16th to tip off against the Mavs.

Enjoy your day- see ya next week!

Blackmer. "I think there should be more money for both classified and certificated (teaching) staff."

And she thinks the administration could learn some things by talking more to the non-teaching staff.

"The administration always has meetings with teachers – monthly, or whatever – but they don't do that with classified employees. They should be getting their input, and finding out what things do work and don't work."

What does she think of the elimination of the middle school, and its replacement with elementary schools that go all the way to eighth grade?

"I'm hoping K-8 is going to be a success," Blackmer commented. "I'm not sold on it yet, because I've never been exposed to it in our district. A lot of people I've come into contact with are skeptical about having older kids on the campuses with the younger kids. To be honest, I can't say I blame them."

Blackmer was asked what kind of fiscal condition the district is in.

"I think there could be even more accountability as to how the money is spent," she answered. "(Citizens) ask questions about where did this money go, or why did you spend this money here? There are a lot of unanswered questions, and people tend to speculate. If the public's questions are answered, I believe they'll be okay with it, or they will let you know."

"As far as layoffs, I know the economy is not good right now. It's kind of shaky. I wonder, why is management getting raises, and the classified employees and WTA (Washington Teachers Association) are not getting raises as much? If we're going to tighten the belts, everybody has to tighten."

If Blackmer is elected, she will be helping to shape the district's contract negotiations involving her former union. Since she will be retired, she doesn't see a problem there.

"At that point, I just become part of the school district's side," said Blackmer.

And she thinks she will be leading a district that "could be better."

"Some of the schools are low (in test scores) and some are not too bad, but could be better," said Blackmer. There's always room for improvement."

How important are test scores for revealing the quality of a school?

"Tests have to do with parents, they have to do with students themselves, they have to do with management, with classified employees, with teachers – it's a team effort. Like the old saying goes, 'it takes a village to raise a child.' We have to find a way to reach out to parents."

Blackmer's campaign hasn't raised a thousand dollars yet, so she doesn't have to file a statement showing her contributions and expenses. She thinks her campaign will stay low-budget, but she plans to knock on a lot of doors to solicit votes.

She invites anyone interested in her candidacy to call her at 371-1018.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Oct. 19, 1784, an essay appears in the Gazette of the United States in which a writer named "Phocion" attacks presidential candidate Thomas Jefferson and accuses Jefferson of carrying on an affair with one of his slaves. Phocion turned out to be former Treasury Secretary Alexander Hamilton.

• On Oct. 18, 1867, the U.S. takes possession of Alaska after purchasing the territory from Russia for less than 2 cents an acre. The American public believed the land to be worthless and dubbed the purchase "Seward's Folly" and "Andrew Johnson's Polar Bear Garden."

• On Oct. 14, 1912, before a presidential campaign speech in Milwaukee, Theodore Roosevelt is shot at close range. The .32-caliber bullet failed to mortally wound the former president because its force was slowed by a glasses case and a manuscript in the breast pocket of Roosevelt's heavy coat.

• On Oct. 17, 1931, gangster Al Capone is sentenced to 11 years in prison for tax evasion and fined $80,000. Although wanted for bootlegging, tax evasion was the only charge the authorities could make stick, as Capone was known for intimidating and bribing witnesses.

• On Oct. 13, 1941, singer-songwriter Paul Simon is born on this day in Newark, N.J. Simon grew up in Forest Hills, N.Y., where he befriended Art Garfunkel in the sixth grade. The two began singing together, and by the time they were 16 they had released a single, "Hey, Schoolgirl," recording as Tom and Jerry.

• On Oct. 16, 1951, Hudson first entered stock-car racing with its Monobuilt design Hornet with a lower center of gravity. Hudson coined this innovation "step-down design" because, for the first time, passengers had to step down in order to get into a car.

• On Oct. 15, 1966, in McKinney, Texas, it was reported that a 75-year-old male driver received 10 traffic tickets, drove on the wrong side of the road four times, committed four hit-and-run offenses and caused six accidents, all within 20 minutes.

Strange BUT TRUE

By Samantha Weaver

• Unless you're a professional dairy farmer who milks cows on a daily basis, it's unlikely that you're aware of the fact that it takes, on average, 350 squirts to get a gallon of milk.

• It was American businessman — and, of course, the inventor of the light bulb — Thomas Alva Edison, who made the following sage observation: "We don't know a millionth of 1 percent about anything."

• If you're like the average American, you eat more than 12 pounds of chocolate every year.

• Experts claim that parts of California are sinking 4 inches every year.

• The name for that lovely lavender stone, amethyst, is derived from the Greek for "not drunk."

• The record at hand doesn't go into details about why King Philip I of France was widely known during his reign as "The Amorous," but we can probably imagine.

• Jewelry lovers, pay attention: Oysters aren't the only creatures with the capability to make pearls. Pearls can come from any mollusk that makes a shell, including mussels, clams, conchs and even land snails.

• From the files of inexplicable criminal activity: A Virginia man was arrested in 2004 at a Motel 6. His crime? He had smeared the entire room with Vaseline. There were 14 empty tubs of the petroleum jelly found at the scene.

• The world-famous Caesar salad was actually invented in Tijuana, Mexico.

• You probably won't be shocked to learn that the sport that is the object of the most online betting is horse racing, followed by soccer. It'll probably come as something of a surprise, though, to find that that most genteel of sports, tennis, ranks third in online betting.

• Don't store propane tanks in the garage. They have a freezing point of -310 F. so they can stay outside year-round.

• "If you're like me and wear glasses and get your hair colored, try this wonderful tip. My hairdresser keeps a container full of glove fingers in her drawer. She cuts the fingers off the plastic gloves after the pair of gloves gets worn. I slip one over each stem of my glasses, and they are protected while the color is on my hair. I can put them on without worrying about the chemicals messing with the plastic, and I just slip them off when my hair is ready to be rinsed." — F.E. in New York

• "I line my cookie sheets with aluminum foil. A lot of people do. But as soon as I have made a batch of cookies, I wipe it clean with a damp paper towel. Then I can set it aside to cool while another batch is cooking. I can do many batches with one lining of foil, and this saves me money." — V.K. in Oregon

• "I use coffee filters to clean windows and mirrors. They are less crumply than newspaper, but still are lint-free and give a nice shine." — P.C. in Virginia

• "My husband is hard on buttons. So, I sew the waist buttons on his pants with dental floss. A touch of shoe polish helps the white to blend in, and it's as tough as he is. I don't recall ever having to resew a button that was put on with floss." — U.S. in Michigan

OPINION

NEWS-LEDGER EDITORIAL

One very good reason to vote for Lois Wolk —

West Sacramento is trying to do all the right things in its effort to bring the city to a "200 year" level of flood protection. The effort is going to require half a billion dollars worth of investment. About 20 percent of that will be local cash, and the rest will have to come from the state and federal governments.

To pull off this upgrade, the city knows it has to present a responsible plan to its partners, and it has to step up with a strong "local share" of contributions.

Also important, in the end, will be the deal-making. West Sacramento will have to successfully compete with other flood-prone jurisdictions to remain near the front of the line with the state and the feds. The city's representation in Sacramento will be key.

Assemblywoman Lois Wolk has been a strong representative of West Sacramento during her years in the Assembly. Now, she hopes to win election to the State Senate.

In the State Senate, Wolk would continue to work with West Sacramento's leaders to upgrade the levees here. It could be a problem if Wolk loses: gone would be her flood-control focus, her experience and her connections. For that reason alone, she deserves your vote on November 4.

Letters to the Editor

Thanks for parade help

I would like to take this opportunity to thank the many individuals who made this year's Neighbors Fair parade a great success. Thirty days ago, no one wanted to take on the parade portion of the Neighbors Fair, and it looked as though a long time tradition would die. Mark Johannessen, Chair of the Neighbors Fair, recruited Marna Miller to do the parade and she agreed to take it on. I helped Marna with the parade and although I am glad it is over, in the end it all came together.

Marna called auto dealers and got a convertible for Grand Marshal John Ohlson to ride in and also found an amphibious vehicle for the River City Jazz Band to occupy. She also found a generator to run their keyboard, but at the last minute found out they could not use it in an enclosed area like the amphibious vehicle. She worked hard at making everyone happy and also have the parade be a success.

As a person who truly loves the West Sacramento community, I was reminded on Saturday why my parents raised their family here, I raised my family here and now my children are raising their families here. We had people just walk up and ask if they could direct traffic, or do any other thing that needed to be done. People like Darrell Binns who voluntered to get people in order to walk in the parade and took over without blinking an eye. John Vinson, who always seems to be there to offer help, the Woodland American Legion Post who came here to act as our color guard and Jacqueline Lasell who did a fine job handing out ribbons for participants.

I also would like to thank the 33 entrants in the parade itself. It is not easy to corall horses, or for that matter young children, to participate in this kind of an event. But in the end, it came off just like I remembered it when Vince Frugoli started it some 30 odd years ago and called it the Columbus Day Parade and Rigatoni Feed. An event that brings long time residents together with our new resident friends to celebrate something that matters to all of us. It is called friendship and community.

Thank you Mark Johannessen and Marna Miller for a job well done and for keeping a long time tradition going strong.

Parade problem

Last Saturday the City of West Sacramento held their annual neighborhood fair. As part of the celebration, they had a parade. I live in Casa Mobile Park, which is next to the city hall. On Saturday, I made a quick dash to Rite Aid. I only expected to be gone 15 minutes and did not take my oxygen kit with me. I also had an 82 year old woman with me. The West Sacramento police had every entrance to the eastside of West Capitol Avenue blocked. Therefore, I and the elderly lady were stuck in the Rite Aid parking lot for over two hours before the street was opened.

I told a police officer I needed to get home because I needed my oxygen. He said I was stuck until the avenue opened up. Next year, I feel arrangements should be made so residents of my mobile park and the nearby motels have some access to our homes.

Bailout and debates

It seems strange how deregulated Wall Street was in such great shape 6 weeks before the November 4th election. Apparently sensing their loss of Bush-Cheney, those overpaid, corporate CEO's decided it was time to cry "help", to the tune of $700 billion! And how about those golden parachute/multi-million dollar awards to departing CEO's?

At least a major part of the blank check bailout request should go towards buying up much of the bad stock – at a reduced unit cost. So, while we shouldn't hold our breath, if/when Wall Street recovers, the credit crunch caused mainly by sub-prime lending/speculation should ease.

And how about that VP debate? Seemed like Senator Joe Biden was more responsive to questions, whereas Governor Sarah Palin dodged too many questions by simply stating her own non-responsive prepared messages. Assessment: In responding, Senator Joe was responsibly "biden" his time, while Governor Sarah was "pal(e)in" by comparison.

Friend of Oscar

Somewhere around 9 years ago, I was attending my daughter's soccer practice in Bryte Park. Oscar Villegas approached me and introduced himself. He was canvassing the area doing an old fashioned "door to door" campaign for his attempt to win a seat in the West Sacramento City Council. My first impression was that Oscar looked very young, although he was in his early 30's which makes him just a few years younger than me. We discussed growing up in the area, and how things were changing and growing.

We touched on several different subjects, and I believe we generally agreed on a lot of the issues we discussed that day. He seemed to see both sides of these issues, and thought the people of West Sacramento should make the decisions needed, as they were the ones directly affected on the issues. We soon realized our daughters were practicing for the same team, so we were now officially both "Soccer Dads". Since this initial introduction, I have come to realize how small West Sacramento still is. I have attended many "Carnitas Con Oscar" support dinners, and have introduced Oscar to new supporters by inviting family and friends. I now run into Oscar at my friend's houses.

Our daughters attended the same school together. We see their family at church on occasion. My daughter has completed community service through functions Oscar's wife Katie is involved in. I have presented an item to the City Council, where Oscar was instrumental in helping my fathers local business when assistance was needed. Nine years after our first meeting, we still run into each other during soccer games and sporting events.

We have mutual friends who live on my street, so I see Oscar doing an occasional drive by when he is coming or going to my neighbor's house. We only live about a mile from each other. This means I often run into Oscar when I am getting coffee at Starbucks..... or getting gas at the Tower Mart..... or when buying groceries at the Nugget market.... or when having a beer at the pub.... or when eating dinner at one of our restaurants....etc. etc. etc.

I believe Oscar has the same dedication for this City as I have. He lives in West Sacramento, and has the same concerns and hopes as every resident of our City. He wants the best for his family and friends, as I want the best for my family and friends. Yes, I am

CRITIC'S CORNER

"Lakeview Terrace"

Running time: 106 minutes
MPAA rating: PG-13

Samuel L. Jackson is really good at shouting. That's what the man does best. Whether he's complaining about motherlovin' snakes on a motherlovin' plane or sportin' a Jheri Curl and spouting scripture before bustin' a cap in some guy's chest, the dude knows how to Project.

And in "Lakeview Terrace," Sam gets to do his share of bellowing and looking menacing. It's too bad he's wasting his gift on a turkey of a movie that tries to make a statement about race, but never goes beyond superficial arguments and contrived plot devices.

In "Terrace," Jackson plays Abel Turner, an LA cop who lives in the 'burbs with his two children. His wife recently passed away under suspicious circumstances. Abel is strict, ultraconservative and definitely old-fashioned in his views.

Enter Chris and Lisa Mattson (Patrick Wilson, Kerry Washington), a young newlywed interracial couple who move into the house next door. Abel doesn't approve of the liberal couple or the fact that a black woman is married to a white man. The rage over the possibility that his wife may have died as a result of an affair with a white man, plus the proximity of an interracial couple living next door, sets Abel off.

He begins to harass them — first by blaring super-bright security lights into their bedroom and slashing tires, then by trying to split the newlyweds up and hiring a criminal to ransack the couple's house, and finally attempted murder.

The first half of the film is actually quite good. Jackson's seething and menacing presence set a unsettling vibe that makes for some suspenseful moments. The problem is the last half of the film. Even though Abel disapproves of the couple and is shattered by his wife's death, I just don't believe that he could be pushed to the extremes the film takes him. It's out of character — and because of that, bits of the film that should be shocking turn out just plain laughable.

"Lakeview Terrace" isn't a horrible film, but I'd wait to rent it if I were you.

Windows of the Soul: My Journeys in the Muslim World
by Alexandra Avakian
(National Geographic, $40)
Reviewed by Ealish Waddell

Throughout her career, photographer Alexandra Avakian has found herself drawn to dangerous areas, caught up in the drama of revolution and the human compulsion to fight for freedom. In "Windows of the Soul," she has collected stories and pictures documenting such struggles across the Islamic world, from the Middle East to America.

Avakian aims to tell stories, both in words that evoke atmosphere and in images that show us details without resorting to the rose-tinted lens of exoticism. She goes beyond the familiar to show us not only what daily life is like in many Islamic towns, but also what society means in places where traditions and customs go back thousands of years, and what survival means in places of endless war and desperate poverty.

While far from homogenous, the regions Avakian chronicles are sadly linked by the specter of death and violence. Explosive Gaza, famine-ripped Somalia and battle-weary Central Asia are all backdrops for scenes of heartbreak.

But the image of a gun-toting child's hard-eyed sneer is juxtaposed with that of smiling boys playing in a wide, sunny river, and that of solemn figures toiling at a huge loom with chatting women enjoying sodas after a shopping trip. The Muslim world is certainly not all conflict and pain, and Avakian highlights aspects of it that might surprise readers — an all-female clothing-optional beach in Iran, desert cave homes wired with electricity and running water, a thriving community founded by African-American Sunni Muslims in the middle of rural Mississippi.

Avakian keeps her focus on facts, not judgment, claiming, "This book is not a statement about Islam or of the peoples of the Muslim world. It is simply a memoir of what I saw and experienced in those lands." It is also a testament to the universality of emotion, passion and beauty the world over.

Blushing Apple Butter

A flavorful cholesterol- and fat-free spread. Yummy on toast or bagels.

3 3/4 pounds Granny Smith apples, peeled, cored and thinly sliced
1 1/2 cups apple cider or apple juice
1 cup cranberries
3 strips (3 inches by 1 inch each) lemon peel
3 tablespoons fresh lemon juice
1 1/2 cups sugar

3. Spoon apple butter into blender in small batches and blend (with center part of blender cover removed to allow steam to escape) until smooth.

4. Spoon apple butter into jars or crocks for gift giving. Store tightly covered in refrigerator for up to 3 weeks. Yields 4 1/2 cups.

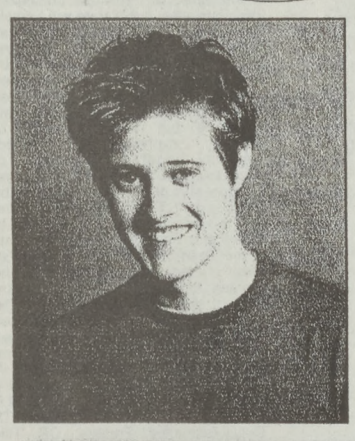
Fave Foods OF THE FAMOUS

by Steven Austin



Lucas Grabeel

Oh, to be young, talented, handsome and successful! If you want to know how it feels, ask Lucas Grabeel, star of the "High School Musical" movies and the comedy "The Adventures of Food Boy," just released on DVD. In "Food Boy," Grabeel plays a superhero who can make food appear in his hand at will. The Missouri native moved to Los Angeles right after graduating high school and quickly became admired for his acting and songwriting talents. "High School Musical 3" hits the big screen on Oct. 24. For more info: www.coldsparkfilms.com and www.disney.com

If you could really make your favorite food appear in your hand at any time, what would it be, and who would you first surprise with such an amazing talent?

"My favorite food is sandwiches. I eat a couple every day, so I would probably get obese just eating all of the time if I really had that superpower. I would like to think that I would go wherever there is a shortage of food and give to those who are in need. It sounds cheesy, but you could really change the world with that kind of power, and who wouldn't do that if given the opportunity?"

Of your "The Adventures of Food Boy" co-stars, who has a funny, off-beat or strange eating habit?

"Brittany Curran would always win at belching contests after lunch, but we said we wouldn't tell anybody. Tee-hee!"

Describe your kitchen at home.

"I have a very clean kitchen ... most of the time. I love to cook with organic foods and rarely use anything loaded with chemicals. I use real butter that I don't have to refrigerate, coconut oil instead of olive oil, and I always have organic whole milk and pasteurized orange juice stocked. As I said before, I eat a lot of sandwiches so there's always a large variety of deli meat and cheese, but also artisan cheese to go with wine. My spice rack is used, but not to its full potential. I could probably spend some time studying my herbs and spices a little more."

Of all the famous superheroes, who would you enjoy having lunch with if he/she could come alive in real life?

"I would love to have lunch with Superman. His story has always intrigued me, and other than having him fly me around the world a few times, I would love to just sit and chat with him. I'm sure he's got great stories to tell."

Any special foods and beverages you like to have in the dressing room?

"Well, I always need water — and lots of it — to drink, but no sodas or coffee. As far as snacks, I love fruit and veggies and cheese. If you couldn't tell, I like to eat healthy!"

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by Christine Crawford, Michael Van Baaren in the Superior Court of California, County of Yolo.

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that Christine Crawford, Michael Van Baaren be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a "Request for Special Notice" (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250.
